'ound in our news columns. The death of such a man as Mr. filden, who had filled such a conpienous space in the history of the ecent past, will cause wide-spread liscussion and comment among the people and in the public press, and great will be the diversity of opinion is to whether his career as a public nan was more for good than for wil. His friends foadly point to nim as the ideal statesman of the imes, "and never tire in sounding nis praises as the great Reformer of he age. They proudly proclaim nim the destroyer of the Tweed ring, apparently ignoring the fact that he stood aloof from the movement igainst Tweed until others had unsarthed his villainies, and only oams n at the close to claim the credit and s sective the reward. They ostentasolously refer to the magnanimity he a lisplayed in quietly acquiescing in the verdict of the electoral commissision of 1876, which, they assert, swindled him out of the Presidency. out they never allude to the fact that the electoral commission was his own plan, and that he could not have joined in the hue and cry of his friends without stultifying himself. Like all other partisan friends of a great man (and nobody will questionhis title to greatness) they can see only the good things in his career, while being blin t to all else Over a dead man's grave is hardly the place to discuss his shortcom ings, but it is not stepping beyond the bounds of propriety, in the case of sich a man as Mr. Tilden, to say n that his undoubted talents were never exercised in such an eminent degree as when he himself was to be the beneficiary, and that he will be longest remembered on account of acts which did not elevate him in the estimation of the plain. honest people of all parties. His name will never be mentioned on account of any honorable part taken by him in the great struggle which marked the period of his prime, but the world will never forget that the attempt to buy the presidency was traced uncomfortably near to his household. Posterity will never ecker of railroad corporations will always be associated with the millions of which he died possessed. His long and laborious life will never be pointed to as an example for young men to follow, for however great was his material success, and however prominent be may have been in the history of his t mes, it was not that kind of success which benefits the cace nor that sort of prominence which historians love to extol or of whose praises poets delight to sing.

Biographical Sketch of the Greatest Statesman of the Modern Democratic Party -- His Early and Later Career.

New York, Aug. 4 .- Samuel J. Tilder died at his home at Greystone, N. Y., at 8:15 a. m., to-day, Tilden had been in feeble health for some time, yet his sudden demise this morning was entirely unexpected. The end was peaceful and quiet. The immediate cause of Mr. Tilden's death was failure of the heart, following an acute attack of diarrhoa and nausea. There were present at the time Mr. Tilden's nelce, Miss Gould and Doctors Charles E. Simonds and Samuel Paratysis and bodily infirmities incident to old age had reduced Mr. Tilden to a mere skeleten, and his last days were marked by extreme feebleness. The routine of his dally life for a year past at his beautiful residence on the Hudson was about as follows: He usually awoke in the morning at about half-past three o'clock; an electric belt at the head of his bed summoned his valet, who gave him his medicine which he took as regularly as he did his food. Afterward he would lie about until eight o'clock, seemingly dozing, though when his valet, thinking him ssleep, approached the bed, he found his bright eyes open and watching him. If he felt well he was assisted down to a point to him as one of the great champions of liberty in the last half of the nineteenth century, but his was constantly open. His right hand was constantly open. His right hand mae was entirely usetess trembling all the time. He had not even the power to raise it to his mouth. His left hand was but slightly affected by the stroke of paralysis, and he had partial use of it. In eating he used his left hand to hold up his lower jaw. His faithful com-panion, Miss Anna Gould, placed to his mouth every particle of food he atc. She generally put it in his mouth with a spoon, and he was enabled to swallow it by calsing his lower jaw with his left hand and putting his he al back.

While at breakfast the morning papers were read to him and notes made by his secretaries at his direction of any important point or move in the political world. Each day he talked with his business manager and confiden-tial secretary, Mr. Geo. W. Smith, and shared a complete acquaintance with the smallest itetalls of his business. His medicine was administered with almost mathematical exactness, and it rarely happened that his night doses were missed at the regular time and it was the

ALBANY, Aug. 4, 1886.

I announce to the people of the State with sincere regret the death of Samuel J. Tilden. After a form and active career devoted to the public good and the rendition of conspicuous services in behalf of the people, he this moraing pacefully passed away at his chosen retreat at Greystone, on the banks of the Hudson. The country losss one of its ablest statesmen and the State of New York one of its foremost citizens. He was twice a representative in the State Legislature, a member of two constitutional conventions, Governor of the State of two years, and in 1875 was the candidate of one of the greatest parties of the country for the Presidency and received the electoral vote of his native State, and upon the popular vote of his native State, and upon the popular vote of his native State, and upon the popular vote was declared the choice of a majority of the voters of the United States. As a private tilizon and in every public station he was pure and discharged every trust with conspicuous ficility. His has public utbrance which attracted universal attention exhibited the same spirit of unsellish patriotism which challecterized his whole career, and was in behalf of strengthening the defences of his country that he loved so well. It is meet that the close of such a life should be marked with more than passing notics. The Legislature of behalf in hession at this time, I commend to the people such expression of respect for his long, faithful and honorable services as they may deem appropriate. Now, therefore, it is hereby directed as a mark of regard for the Ongletol and upon all public buildings of the State, including the armories and arsenals of the National Gard, be displayed at half-mast until and including the day of the funeral, and the citizons of the State for a like period are requested to unite in appropriate tokons of respect.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 .- The news of the death of Mr. Tilden was received in this city soon after nine o'clock yesterday morning and spread rapidly over the city. As the announcement of his death had not been preceded by any news of his serious iliness, it created general surprise. The President heard of his death about half-past nine o'clock and at once sent the following telegram of sympathy to Mr. Tilden's nephew:

Most of the Cabinet officers called at the Executive Mansion during the forenoon to see the President in relation to matters connected with their respective departments, and the death of Mr. Tilden was a subject of general conversa-tion between the President and his ad-visors. They all expressed regrot and sorrow at the sudden removal of a man whom they all regarded as the great leader of the Democratic party.

At the Capitol Democratic Senators and Representatives expressed the highest regard for Mr. Tilden and accorded him an exalted place in history. Among the Republicans there was no disposition to criticize the dead statesman, and they spoke of him as a leader of integrity and ability and a good citizen. Senator Manderson thinks the Demo-

Senator Kenna said: "Mr. Tilden had and exercised more individual political influence than any man of post-bellum times. He was a great man. He was a man of superb ability, and of courage and firmness. I don't think his death will cause any sort of political disturbance. He had in a great measure, retired from the political arena. In fact, he had actually retired in so far as it rested with him to do so. Naturally his advice was sought. The Democratic organization in New York will go on undisturbed and in New York will go on undisturbed and to greater victories than in the past."

"He was a big man," said Senator Beek, "no doubt of that, but his death will not cause any trouble in the party. No man is essential to this world. Every gap caused by death is immediately filled. Why, you might as well stick your finger lin a bucket of water and expect to make a hole as to see any man missed from the busy affairs of life." Senator Butler, while bearing tribute to the wisdom, sagacity and influence of Mr. Tilden, expressed the opinion that his absence would not have any effect Other Democratic Senators agreed substantially with the expressions of those quoted, all of them speaking in high terms of Mr. Tilden, but holding that his political power will pass to other hands in the party and be wielded for the good of the Democracy. Mr. Randall, when he heard of Mr. Tilden's death, was visibly moved and spoke feelingly of it. "It is bad news," he said. "All our old chieftain." are dropping off. This a great loss; a great loss; just when we thought his health had much improved." The fact was commented upon to-day that sluce the present Administration came into power, dve Presidential candidates of the Democratic party have passed away. 1874 the revulsion of feeling that came in 1876, was born at New Lebanon, in the County of Columbia, N. Y., in the year 1914. He had a thorough infusion of English blood, one of his ancestors Nathuniel Tilden, having been in 1823 Mayor of Tenterden, County Kent, England, subsequently moving to Massachusetts in 184.

The grandfather of Samuel J. Tilden settled in Columbia County, and his son, Elam, who became the father of the Democratic statesuman, was a farmer and merchant of the town of New Lebanon, a man of excellent judgment and good sense, and so well informed in political matters as to be looked upon as the oracle of the county and to be regarded by President Van Buren as a warm personal friend. It was from this side of the house that Governor Tilden inherited his taste for political pursules and his wide acquaintance with affairs had its root in his early associations with his father.

In his eighteenth year Sanade entered Yale College, but he had not been there long when his health gave way and he was compelled to leave. Later on in 1814, at the are of twenty, he entered the law office of John W. Reimunds in New York, where he enjoyed unusuality valuable facilities for studying law and politics.

BIS FIRST PUBLIC STRE.

Soon after the accession of Van Buren to the Presidency came the great pante of 1837, and a bitter debate swept over the country. The Fresident's recommendation for the separation of the Bovernment from the banks and the establishment of an independent treasury called down upon the Executive's head the fiercest demundation. The young lawyer had imbibed from his father a great admination for Van Buren, and this inspired bim to publish a series of papers signed "Crino" in defense of the President. These productions were marked by great matury of thought.

On being admisted to the bar, in 1841, Mr. Tilden opened a law office on Pine street, New York. In 1844 he founded the Dania News to take part in the election of James K. Polk. In the fall of 1815 he was sent to the Assembly from the metropolis, and while a member was selected to the convention for the remodeling of the Constitution of the State. In both these bodies Mr. Tilden was no insignificant factor. Political dissensions among the friends of Polk and Van Buren and its own defeat for Attorney-General of New York estranged Mr. Tilden from politics, and for over a decade he devoted himself strictly to his profession. His practice was very extensive and by it be annassed considerable wealth. He was counsel in 1856 in the Flagg case, growing out of the contested election to the Comptrollership of New York city, and in 1874 was attorney for the relatives of Dr. Bardell in the celebrated suit with Mrs. Cunnigham, and for the Pennsylvania Coul Company in its suit with the Delaware & Hudson Coul Company.

suit with the Delawaro & Hudson Combonspany.

His war record.

Up to the bresking out of the rebellion he made every effort to a wert bloodshed, but when his enleavors proved futtle, he slided unflinchingly with the Union. In the winter of 1896-81 he attended a meeting of the leading men of both parties in the city of New York to consider the question of the hour. Mr. Titden counseled moderation for both sides. During the war he occupied a position that lucked so much of emouragement in its attitude toward the Federal Government but his loyalty was impugned afterward by his political opponents, who made mich not only out of his actions in his own State, but also his prominence in the Peace Convention at Chicago in 1864, when General McClellan was put up ugainst President Lincoin. He was accused of having a hand in incorporating into the platform the 'war is a failure' disuse, but in a communication published in 1876, Manton Marbio declared that he had the original letter from Governor Tilden to General McClellan requesting that the objectionable words be eliminated from the platform. In the same publication Mr. Marbie states that in a paper prepared in October, 1882, to set forth the position of the New York Democracy, Governor Tilden closed with this pathetele outburst:

"We will give you every thing that local self-government demands; overy thing that a common ancestry of glory—every thing National fratornity or Christian followship requires; but to dissolve the Federal bond between those States, to dismember our country, who ever eles consents, we will not. country, who ever else consents, we will not. No, nover, never, never."

INS. REFORM RECORD.

IN 1885 Mr. Tilden was made chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and was a leading member of the Constitutional Convention held in 1887, serving with distinction on the finance committee. He became an earnest and uncompromising laborer in the city of New York, and in 1885-70 was active in organizing the Bar Association of New York City. When the contest was waged against the members of the Tammany ring holding city offices, who were charged with defrauding the city treasury of many millions, Governor Tilden won great fame and took his first step toward the "reform' candidacy for the Presidency by his celebrated analysis of the accounts of the Broadway Bank showing conclusively how Tweed and his pals had shared their spoils and producing evidence on which they were convicted. In 1871 he was again elected to the General Assembly, where he continued his exertions in the cause of reform.

In 1874 he was elected Governor of New York over General John A Dix by a plurality of 50,000 of two years manded the was in-augurated January 1,1875, and immediately began operations acting the "canal Fine," which resulted in the verticow of that organization.

At the Democratic convention in St. Louis in 1876 he was nominated on the second ballot, receiving 535 votes in a total of 718, two-thirds being necess ary to a cloice. The other votes were east as follows. Allen. 54; Thurman, 2; Hendricks, S; Buyard, 4; Hancock, 48. Thos. A. Hendricks was nominated for Vice-President. The result of the election was very close, and led to the appointment of the memorable Electoral Commission, composed of five members each from the Senate, the House and the Suprume Court, which gave the Presidency to Rutherford B. Hayes. During the exciting scenes of the winter of 1876-77 Governor Tilden held himself with great patience and discretion, and never gave expression to a word calculated to inflame his partisans. He retired from active legal life soon after this, and settling down in a quiet life at Crameror Park enrued the name of the

any repining over the loss of the restrictions of resignation.

In 1836 he was mentioned again as a possible candidate for the Presidency, but the infrantise of age, he said, compelled him to abandon all hopes of again leading the Democratic host. Since then, however, he has been the country, and the long Democrate of the country, and the largely shaped that party's policy in many important moustires. Although in many important moustires. Although in such techic health his work frame has sent forth a voice which was heard in every Democratic examp in the country, and the power of his apparently undiminished intellect was feit in all the broils of the New York Democracy even when he was reported to be weakest in physical strongth. His plain residence has been the Meeca for Democratic pligrims and the stone steps have been trod by the most august feet in the now dominant political party.

The Weakness of the Defense Becoming More and More Apparent.

Witnesses Who Contradioted Each Other and Themselves in a Manner That is Confusing, Relied Upon to Impeach the Testimony of Witnesses for the Prosecution-A Fotlorn Case.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 .- In the Anarchist trial this morning Conrad Messer was the first witness called. He testified that he was at the Anarchist meeting, and recognized Spies and Fielden on the wagon where the speakers stood when the police came. He heard the explosion of the bomb. Spies and Fielden were still on the wagon. He did not see either of them shoot or have a revolver. The witness stated that he did not belong to any group of Anarchists or Socialists. On cross-examination he stated that he had known Spies and Fielden for a few months.

ther a Socialist nor an Anarchist; was at the Haymarket meeting; was with a friend; they stood near the alley. They went into the alley to light pipes Krumm's face resembles Spies.
This testimony the defense expect will offset Gilmer's evidence. They will contend that Gilmer mistook Krumm for Spies, and that the former, instead of lightning a bomb, was doing nothing more harmful than lighting a pipe.

On the cross-examination the witness was subjected to a very severe question.

August Krumm stated that he was nei

ing by the State's attorney, and not only ing by the State's attorney, and not only seriously contradicted his own narrative but that of other witnesses for the defense. He declared that there were no boxes on the sidewalk at the point designation of the sidewalk at the point designation. nated by the other witnesses for the defense, and from which it was claimed the bomb was thrown. When asked to point out Spies, whom heard speak, the witness pointed out Plaiden. Fleiden.

Robert Lidinger said he stood at the Robert Lidinger said ne stood at the entrance of the alley arm in arm with his friend Carl Richer. He testified that, after the bomb exploded, the police appeared to be doing all the shooting. He saw no one else fire. On the cross-examina-no one else fire. On the cross-examina-tion Lidinger testified that he did not see any boxes on the sidewalk.

Wm. Albright, who was expected to corroborate the story related by Kramms, testified that he went into the alley just before the explosion. He heard one shot fired before the bomb exploded and that it came from the direction of the police. The witness saw no one else in the alley except Krumm and himself. The bomb was not thrown from the alley. Before being subjected to a cross-examination the court adjourned. Lieutenant Shes, of the Detective Department, received by express yesterday the clothes of the man who was found in a river at Eric, Pa., and was supposed to a river at Erie, Pa., and was supposed to be Schnaubelt, the thrower of the bomb which did such havor among the police at the Haymarket last May. When the body was found the authorities of Erie supposed, from descriptions, that they had found the remains of Schnaubelt, had at once telegraphed to the authorities here. It was doubted that the body was that of Schnaubelt, but to be sure Lieutenant Shea had the clothes sent here. Schnaubet is known to be a man of about six feet in height and about two hundred pounds in weight. The clothes received yesterday had been worn by a man who could not have weighed more than one hundred and sixty pounds. The garments were evidently not his, and the supposition is that the homb-thrower is still at large.

At the opening of the afternoon session the Court announced that Juror Reed, having learned that his wife was ill, desired permission to visit his home when court adjourned to-night. The request was granted with the consent of attor

The afternoon proceedings commenced with the examination of Mrs. Sophia Glum. She testified that Wm. Seliger, one of the State's informer witnesse came to her house about the 18th of May and stayed two weeks. "Did you have any conversation with Seliger while he was at your house, asked Foster, "regarding the writte intement he had made to the police say ing he did not believe he was safe while at liberty?"

"Yes, sir."
"Did you hear him say that this statement was drawn froin him by threats?"
The State objected and the Court sustained the objection on the ground that he matter had not been touched upon during the examination of Seliger.

George Kochler was then examined as to incidents of the Haymarket meeting at which he was present. His story had nothing new in it. "Are you a Socialist?" asked Attorney Foster of Theodore Welmelt, formerly a poper, now a canvasser for pictures and

"No, sir." "Or an Anarchist?"

"No, sir; I am an American." When the Court and spectators had re covered from the effect of this unexpect-ed announcement, witness proceeded to tell an printeresting and immuterial sto ry of what he saw at the Haymarket meeting. He was not cross-examined. Frederick C. Groh and August Kraase testified in relation to a speech made by Engel, one of the defendants, at a meeting of the Carpenters' Union in April. Witnesses for the State had sworn that Engel urged workingmen at their meeting to save money and purchase revolvers with which to kill police. Both witnesses for the defense were present and swore they heard no such language.

Wilhelm Ridne, saloon-keeper, was placed upon the stand to swear that ilmer's statement that Schwab was at the Haymarket meeting was false. Witness said that he saw Schwab, on the evening of May 4, speaking to 4,000 persons gathered near McCormick's reader works. Witness' memory as to the time of evening when he saw time of evening when he saw Schwab speaking was by no means so accurate as to make it impossible for Schwab to have been at the Haymarket carlier or later. Schmidt was at one time so close to the speakers' wagon in the Haymarket that he scratched a match on one of its wheels. When the bomb exploded he ian. He told the same story To the State's attorney.

Joseph Schwint, another eye-witness of the Haymarket rlot, was examined

Died on the Way Home. A telegram received at noon to-day from a point on the Chicago division of the Wabash road, sent by Amzı H. Baker, stated that Mrs. Docia Baker, wife of Walter Baker, had died on the train near Forrest while en route for home. About two weeks ago Mrs. Baker, who has been in a low state of health for some months, went to Green Bay, Wis, in company with Mrs. Wm. Dodson, in the hope that the change might revive her strength. She became weaker instead of stronger, and Monday Amzi Baker went to Green Bay to bring her home. The intelligence of her sudden death is a great shock to her husband and her many friends. She had been ill with consumption. The remains arrived in the city this afternoon. Mis Laker was a daughter of Joseph Gater, of Orlando, Florida, and was aged about 27 years. She leaves a busband and an infant son, bue was a graduate of the High School and was inghiy esteemed in the community.

Matermonial. Theo. A. Stecher, son of A. Stecher, the West Main street grocer, and Mass Carrie L. Johnson were united in marriage last evening at 9 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Johnson, two miles southwest of Decatur, in the presence of about 50 relatives and friends. Rev. Prestley was the officiating clergyman. A fine suppor was served. The couple received many gifts, one of which was a deed from the groom's parents for a residence lot on West Wood street. The bride is an '86 graduate of the High School. Her sister played the wedding march.

The dollar excursion to Springfield and the State Encampment, to be given by Goodman's band on Sunday, will eateh a large crowd. Train will leave the Union depot at 8 o'clock, and there will be plenty of cars for all who go along. The members of the band will wear their new suits, and serenade the State militia at Camp Lincoln.

BEFORE leaving the city last evening 'Squire Danley, of Nuntic, who was her in search of his lost daughter saw Marshal Mason and gave him all he knew about the mysterious disappearance of the girl. Her name is Elithe V. Danley, and her age is 15. She has auburn hair and is large of her age, and were a straw hat and a blue gingham outfit when she oarded the train at Niantic on Tuesday to come to the city to take in Barnum's show. She had been forbidden to keep company with a party at Niantic, and i was believed that she had gone off with him, but he came back to Niantic alone Tuesday evening gloriously drunk, so that theory was exploded. The father is greatly distressed about Elithe. He can get no trace of her.

A Slander.

Mr. George Johnston recently made a tour of Champaign, Decatur and other cities which are talking up brick pavements. At Decatur they are putting down several blocks with brick barned at Decatur and in no particular equal to the Bloomington product. The fact is that brick pavement is a tremendous suc-cess if laid with a certain hard brick, but otherwise a dire failure, and there is no gainsaying the fact that Bloomington is the only place where the genuine hard brick is burned.—Bloomington Leader.

The REPUBLICAN will state that Mr. Johnston's brick used on the south side, of the old square, this city, are considered by all good judges to be far inferior to brick made in Decatur, and the city council greatly regret that they gave Johnson the contract for that job. Decatur paving brick, in fact, are better than any made in Bloomington or any other town, and it doesn't look well for Mr. Johnson, who failed to get another contract in this city, to speak slightingly of Decetur brick.

NELLIE PRATT celebrated her birthday last evening at the home on West Prairie street. There was an army of friends present and all had a gay time. Thus far the council committee arpointed to confer with the I, D. & S offlcials about a right of way through Decatur has done but little. Agent Abbott speaks for the company to say that he is glad the city has done something by way of encouragement, though what it will amount to he cannot predict. Wabash Agent Harwood believes the company might get a route through on the north side of the Wabsah line.

effect of Their Education—Indians as Puplis-The Labor System in Education. Now the Little Indians Enjoy Themaslves-A Wonderful Institution, Etc.

(Special Correspondence.)

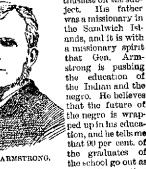

Hampton, Va., Aug. 2.—I am writing this letter on some of the most historic ground in America. Hampton, Va., is situated within a few miles of Oid Point Comfort, around which rise the buttlements of Fortress Monroe, the largest fortification in the United States. On the waters opposite me the battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac was fought, and on the ground where I now sit Capt. John Smith stopped in 1608 before he went up the James viver to have his life saved by Pocalionias. A stone's throw from here Ben Butler established the first colored school in the United States, and it was here that he the United States, and it was here that he made his declaration that the negro was connade his declaration that the negro was contraband of war. Just across Hampton roads, out of sight, is Norfolk, and between Hampton and that point lie the rip-raps, where Andrew Jackson used to go fishing with Arnos Kendal, and where it was supposed President Tyler was going for a summer vacable by allowed all to Now York and tion when he slipped off to New York and nuarried Julia Gardiner in one of the churches

VIRGINIA HALL

During the late war Hampton was regarded by the freelmen as a city of relage. With Ben Batler to back them, the colored people collected here from all quarters, and it is probably this fact that caused the foundation of a great colored educational institution at this point A colored population of 2,000,00 lies within easy reach of Hampton, and about twenty years ago a school was opened here for colored scholars on a manual labor basis. This school has since developed into the noted Normal and Agricultural Institute of Hampton, which now has buildings and lands valued at $400,000, and which gives tuition annually to about 500 colored people and 140 Indians. has become one of the great institutions of the United States, and it is known from Maine to Georgia and from Oregon to Florida. It has Georgia and from Oregon to Florial. It has graduated 500 colored students, of whom nine-tenths are doing well, and though it has been used as an Indian school for only about a decade, it has sent out 145 educated Indians. two-thirds of whom are now teachers, farmers, mechanics and laborers in the west. It probably the cheapest college in the United States, and from its catalogue, which lies be-fore me, I find that the cost of tuition is only $70 per year per student, that heard costs $10 per month, and that the cost of clothing ranges rom $20 to $50 a year. This tuition is paid by endowment or gifts of friends of the insti-tution, so that the whole necessary part to the colored student who wishes an education is about $50 a year for clothing and $10 a month Gen. H. C. Armstrong is a straight, fine looking man of 50, who has been engaged in the work for some years, and who is an enthusinst on the sub ject. Ilis father the Sandwich Islands, and it is with a missionary spirit that Gen, Arm strong is pushing the education of the graduates of the school go out as teachers. He does not believe that the only good Indian is a dead Indian, and he says that, though there are hardly more than 3.000 out of the 11,000 In-dians entelled in hording and day schools diffis enrolled in hoarding and day schools who are getting a practical education, that 15,000 would take such an education if they could get it, and that there are 30,000 who need it. He says there are twenty tribes really to take lands in severalty, and that if the povernment will pay the treaty debt of the Indians of $4,000,000, as the interior department urges, it could, if the money was need withy not the Indians far in advance in used wisely, put the Indians far in advance in INDIAN BOYS IN UNIFORM. The students are all required to labor for bertain hours overy day, but they have only an hour's work a day which they are not paid for. For all over this the school pays them from 5 to 8 cents an hour, and they have the chance of making from $4 to 85 u month at the trades which they learn hero. The aim is to give them such an education as will enable them to make good citizens and good mon and women, and they are taught, in addition to the usual branches of education, the use of tools and useful trades. The girls learn how to keep house, to cook, to wash, to nurse and to sew, and the boys have certain hours of work upon the farm, in the sawmill, the carpenter shop, the tin shop, the blacksmith shop and elsewhere. The institution is by no means a money making one. It is not managed as a speculation but as a great educational, and, in a manner, charitable, instituoffice. The Romington is the perfect machine, solidly built, alignments always tional, and, in a manner, character, instat-tion. It receives an appropriation from the state of Virginia and congress pays $167 a year for each Indian student being educated in it. The labor feature is a matter of edu-cation rather than for profit, and the students last year earned over $42,000.

The Indians and the negroes associate together here at Hampton, and the students are, as a class, fine looking, well-dressed follows.

I was much interested in the Indian scholars, and in corepany with a guide I made a teur of the school. The buildings are many, some of frame and some of stone and brick. Vir-ginia hall, which was built by the Hampton singers, who, like the Fiske jubilee singers, traveled all over the country and gave con-certs, is a fine French-roofed brick of about I was much interested in going an ough ons various shops and in noting the Indians and the colored boys at their trades. The Huntingdon industrial works, the gift of the millionaire, C. P. Huntingdon, is an immanse when the color of the co 190 feet front. One of its wings is 100 feet deep, and its cost must have run high into the thousands. The Indiana here are dressed like the whites, and they live like civilized people. The Indian boys' cottage is called the "wig-wam." Each Indian has a room to himself

A-GROUP OF SIOUX INDIAN CIRLS. ltted up with a washstand, a good, hard clean bed, a chair and a table. I noted that many of them decorated their rooms with detures, and that though the prints were poor the evidence of artistic teste was not

These Indians come from many different ribes and they speak languages widely dif-erent. When they first come the sign lanuage, which is in common use among all the indian tribes, was used by the students in instructing them as to various matters, and l give you a picture here of a Hampton student who is supposed to be telling two of his planketed brothers, fresh from the frontier. how the white man's way is the better way

Hampton is managed somewhat as a mili-tary school. The officers drill daily, and the scholars all have uniforms. The dark skinned officers wear their epaulettes with dignity, and I noted that the major, who was our guide, was greated with a military salute wherever we went.

The Indians here of both sexes enjoy the life. The Indian boys cut their hair short and wear shoes instead of moccasins. They like American gumes, and play croquet, dominous and checkers, delighting especially in looking at pictures and in reading when they become far enough advanced to do so. They try to help each other, and they have, They try to help each other, and they have, in the wigwam, family prayers every night conducted by the boys, two taking part each night. One reads a verse from the Bible and the other makes a short prayer either in English or Indian, and then all sing a verse and repeat the Lord's prayer. These Indian and the part of the prayer. They students are great follows for Clubs. They have a half dozen different organizations made up of debating societies, literary so-cieties, temperance societies, brothers so-cieties, etc. The Indian girls have also clubs, and every two weeks these clubs meet together and have social and literary entertain nents. The Indian is much more of a social animal than he is given credit for, and under proper surroundings he develops a love for social amusements equal to that of the Eng-

AN INDIAN GIRL IN HER ROOM. The Indians here, as a rule, work half of the day and study the other half. I entered a number of their class rooms, and heard them answer the questions propounded by the teachers. They were in the same classes with negro students, all dressed in blue uniforms, and I was told that the Indian learned more quickly, as a rule, than the negro. The Indian boys are straight, fine looking fellows, and they carry an independent air in their eye and in their walk. The most of those I heard talked English fairly well, though one was glum and would reply to none of the

The Indian girls are, as a rule, not pretty. They are drossed plainly, and make good students. They learn easily all pertaining to students. They learn easily all pertaining to housekeeping, and many of them make excellent cooks. Such as have gone out from Hampton have done well. Some are teachers, others are wives of Indians educating their husbands, and a great number have brought scap and water and good cooking in among the savages. Miss Helen W. Ludiow, one of the teachers of Hampton, who traveled lately throughout the west, visited most of the tribes where the Hampton students of the tribes where the Hampton students vere, and she says out of the seventy-fliree students she saw only four who had gone back to the use of the blanket. This use of the blanket, instead of civilized clothing, is with the Indians the sign of advancement or retrogression. If you can get an Indian to wear civilized clothing half the battle has been won. I was much interested in going through the laning mill, which saws over 2,000,000 feet of pine logs every year. A number of boys were working in it as I entered, and I noted that some of their work was finely finished seats for a church which is being put up for In the girls' industrial department I found In the girls' industrial department 1 round 54 girls sawing and mending, and some making clothes and shirts. This department turned out 2,577 pieces of work last year, and among its workers are 2 Indian boy tailors. In the household division 120 colored and 50 Indian girls take their turn in cooking lesers and at the tables 40 boys are writers and ons, and at the tables 40 boys are waiters and 14 are cooks. In the Indian training shop here are 17 boys using curpenter tools, 2 are there are 17 boys using curpenter tools, 2 are learning painting, 5 tinning, and 4 harness making. Three young Indians are employed in the printing office, and the paper which is issued by the school contains articles and essays written by the students in almost every issue. The Indians make good shoemakers, and the shoe shops of Hampton are busy enough places to be located in Lynn. They turn out 800 pairs of shoes a year, and they do all the repairing for the students.

I noticed some harness made by the Indian boys here, and the work is excellent and as finely finished as you will find anywhere. In the engineer shop two Indians are at work and these men are getting the training which will fit them for plumbing if it should happen that an Indian city should rise with modern improvements. There is a knitting department here at Hampton, at which the students make good wages, but the Indians do not take to this class of work, and the 19,000 dozer pairs of mittens which are turned out yearly ere made by colored students.

I was much impressed with the scene at the dinner tables. All of the 700 students came in in an orderly manner, and all stood and sang a blessing over their meal in chorus. The forty wallors were all, boys in white aprons, and the tables were small ones scataprons, and the tables were small ones scar-tered throughout a big room. The boy at the head of the table helped out the dishes to the members of his table, and I noticed that the eating was done with as much decorum and etiquette as you will find at any ordinary family dinner table in America. The students seem to enjoy their meal, and they chatted together as they ate. There were many beautiful girls among the colored students, and not a few with faces so white and caucasian-like in their features that only their asso ciation showed them to be of African origin.

During my whole visit to the school I did ot hear a vulgar word or see an unbecoming action in any of the students. The class rooms showed much intelligent teaching, and the scholars of the upper classes will compare very favorably with those of some of the white colleges which I have visited. The Hampton school has proved that the Indian and negro are susceptible of a high order of education, and the hundreds of graduates which this school turns out yearly cannot but be of great influence in civilizing the races to which they respectively belong.
